Lad, 15, Is Killed, Four Others Injured In Accidents In County

A 15-year-old West Union boy was killed at about 12:30 p. m. Sunday west of Circleville when he ran into the path of an automobile containing servicemen going home on leave for Christmas.

Four other persons were injured in two additional mishaps in the county during the weekend.

Killed was Ralph Copas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Copas of West Union.

The accident happened at a small cement bridge on Route 22, about 4 miles west of the city.

Deputies Walter Richards and Jim Diltz said the car in which young Copas was riding with his mother, younger brother and an unidentified man, was travelling east on Route 22.

The deputies said the auto had travelled through the bridge and topped about 200 feet beyond while Copas and his younger brother were sent back to the small stream to get water for the car's radiator.

The two lads walked back to the bridge, the younger brother staying on the south side of the bridge as the victim crossed the highway and down a steep bank to the water.

Returning to the road, deputies said, the youth started to run across to his brother when he was struck by an auto operated

M. Kirkwood, Henkle Homes Win Awards

Top winners in Circleville's 1952 Christmas home-trimming contest are Montford Kirkwood of 110 Collins Court and Don D. Henkle of 443 East Mound street.

Duplicate first-prize awards of $25 in cash were won by Kirkwood for the best-trimmed house in the northend; and Henkle for the best-trimmed in the southend.

The Kirkwood home was selected by a panel of four judges as the outstanding decorated home in the northend with its "Merry Christmas" theme in a shadow-box effect.

Henkle's home was chosen the best in the southend of the city for its display of Santa and Rudolph, the red-nosed reindeer.

Other winners in the northend were: Richard Plum of 112 Reber avenue, showing a manger and angel theme; and Mrs. Robert V. George, Northridge Road, a mural plus Santa Claus.

Other winners in the southend were: Carl Manson and Mrs. Jack Swyers, who decorated the Manson house on Dunmore Road with a "fired" Santa scene; and Robert Dick of 341 East Franklin street, whose house showed a Santa and toys scene.

Duplicate awards of $10 for second and $5 for third were offered in both northend and southend contests.

William Cook of Park Place and Mrs. Stanley Peters of 313 South Court street were singled out by the judges for honorable mention in the contest.

Judges for this year's contest, directed by Joe Bell for the Chamber of Commerce, were Mr. and Mrs. William Ingle of Bainbridge; and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Beam of Wilmington.

Bell said a total of 28 houses were entered in this year's contest.

16 Ohioans Killed During Week End

COLUMBUS (AP)—Highway accidents took the lives of 12 Ohioans in the state over the week end.

Three others died in fires and another in an industrial accident, an Associated Press survey showed today.

Carl Bennett Home Damaged By Fire

Circleville fire department was called at 8:10 a. m. Sunday to extinguish a fire in the home of Carl Bennett, unsuccessful candidate for state representative in last month's elections.

The Bennett home is on Walnut Creek pike, about five miles north-east of Circleville.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise said a fire in the residence was not correctly built and that fire, eating through the floor of the living room, had apparently smoldered for several days before it was detected Sunday.

Wise said flooring immediately beneath the fireplace lacked adequate protection.

Damage to the home was estimated at approximately $100.

Work Needed To Ready Gift For Christmas

Circleville's huge Christmas present—a new house the city is building for a family left homeless in a fire Dec. 10—may be ready to place under the tree on Christmas Eve.

But if it is, someone is going to have to work very hard to get the job done.

The site of the new house was attacked by local workmen Sunday and put under roof. About 18 men turned out to give a hand to the family of Montford (the Mole) Pollock, who were burned out.

Talmer Wise, who formed the project of building the Pollocks a new home for Christmas, said the job could be completed by Christmas Eve "if people will turn out in the evenings to work at it."

WORKMEN Sunday completely sheathed the walls and roof of the house, felt-covered the roof and made two partitions.

Wiring under the supervision of Leonard Lytle was roughed in, and electrical circuits were set up.

And city roofers Monday morning were to have moved onto the site to place a shingle roof on the new four-room home.

And the chimney located in the center of the home is to be completed Monday by firemen Fred Howell and Bern Wolfe.

But needed to be done yet are: Installation of doors and windows;

Inside panelling;

Flooring;

Installing one more partition; and Tacking on imitation brick siding.

Wise said workmen who want to help on the project can report at the site behind the ice plant on Island Road in the evening. Lights will be set up at the site.

McCrary 'Reporting For Duty,' Claims His Suspension Illegal

Circleville Police Chief William F. McCrary, declaring his recent suspension by Mayor Ed Amey illegal, announced by letter Monday he was "reporting for duty as of now." His 15-day suspension has one week yet to go.

McCrary also announced claim on his salary for the past week and "any costs payable."

The Chief's action turned the spotlight on the city's civil service commission, which plans to meet at 8 p. m. Monday to "iron out the legal points involved."

A spokesman for the commission said McCrary has yet to ask formally for a hearing before the group.

MAIN PURPOSE of the commission's meeting Monday night presumably would be to study and rule on two technicalities stressed in the Chief's bombshell notice to the mayor.

The Chief's letter, announcing his return to duty, was handed to the mayor by Joe Adkins, counsel for McCrary.

It read as follows:

"This is to advise that I am immediately reporting for duty as chief of police of the city of Circleville for the reason that I have been advised by my attorney that the purported suspension given to me on Dec. 15, 1952, is not valid and is null and void for the reason that the Civil Service Commission of the city was not notified forthwith of said suspension and I was not given an opportunity for a hearing before said commission within five days as provided by law.

"I expect to be entitled to my full salary during the past week that I was illegally suspended, together with any costs payable to the chief of police during that time."

McCrary's defiance of the suspension order in effect put two men in charge of Circleville police force pending action by the Civil Service Commission.

"Unless I'm overruled by the commission," Amey declared, "McCrary is still suspended and is not on duty as the chief of police."

AT THE TIME of McCrary's suspension for alleged violation of a rule covering the use of city police cruisers, Amey appointed Policeman Elmer Merriman as acting chief.

Main debate in the controversy, latest chapter in a long series of disputes involving police department authority, was expected to center on the word "forthwith" as used in the Chief's letter.

Point at issue was whether the commission was notified "forthwith" of McCrary's suspension.

Amey wrote a letter of notification to the commission and dated it Dec. 17. He said he is under the impression it was mailed immediately and pointed out he had no control of its progress through local postal channels.

However, Vernon Hawkes, a member of the Civil Service group, said he didn't receive the letter of notification until Monday morning and that it was postmarked as Sunday.

Legal counsel for the Mayor said there is no cause for the chief's reference to the second point stressed in his letter, claiming rights to a hearing before the commission "within five days."

CONTENTION is that the law reads within five days of the date the commission receives the letter—and not within five days of the suspension announcement.

McCrary at first declared there was nothing doubtful in the legal points involved and merely announced, as he stood in the police station:

"I'm here and I'm going to work."

The Chief, however, later left the police headquarters on the advice of his attorney when Amey threatened to ask for a restraining order against the Chief.

McCrary was suspended Dec. 15, the Mayor announced, because the Chief took a police cruiser outside the city without authorization.

Experts Study Air Crash In Which 86 Died

Exhaustive Probes Sought Into Tragedy Involving Globemaster

MOSES LAKE, Wash. (AP)—Military experts continued efforts today to solve the riddle of why 86 men were killed here Saturday in history's worst airplane crash.

And civilian officials, in and out of government circles, began a concerted demand for action to reduce the number of military plane accidents.

Saturday's crash, which killed all but 30 of the men aboard the U. S. military's biggest airplane, was the 10th in a recent series which has snuffed out more than 300 lives. Calls began immediately for grounding of military aircraft while safety precautions and plane checks are taken.

Sen. Richard Russell (D-Ga.) called for an exhaustive investigation. He said it was possible a subcommittee of his Senate Armed Services Committee would take action in the disaster.

AT LARSON Air Force Base, starting point of the flight, the grim and tedious job of identifying the dead continued. The process was slow because many of the victims were mangled and burned beyond recognition.

Meanwhile, four Air Force generals huddled with other officers, civilians and technical representatives of aircraft and equipment manufacturers, trying to piece together the cause of the accident.

An Air Force captain with years of experience flying heavy equipment said he thought the plane just couldn't develop enough power to rise from the runway.

He was Capt. George Demas of Cleveland. His observations were made first-hand—he was one of the passengers who lived through the crash.

"I had a peculiar feeling," he said from his hospital bed at Larson AFB, "that we were staying too long on the ground. I became convinced of this when I felt the plane bounced at the end of the runway and it seemed the plane had not developed enough power to complete the takeoff."

The pilot, Capt. Demas said, appeared to be in a daze.

YOUR NOTICE

More Atom Energy Private Enterprise Urged By Board

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Security Resources Board urged today the government encourage greater participation by private enterprise in the development and use of atomic energy as a source of power.

This is one way, the board said in a report to President Truman, the nation can plan to insure against exhaustion of its strategic materials resources.

Other steps it recommended after a six-month study of long-term materials and energy supply problems included:

1 — A mineral leasing system as an optional alternative to claim-staking on public lands. The board said many provisions of existing law are obsolete.

2 — A law prescribing policy to be followed by the Department of the Interior in managing off-shore oil lands.

3 — Laws authorizing United States participation with Canada in constructing the St. Lawrence Seaway and power project, and providing for other multiple-purpose river development.

4 — LEGISLATION authorizing reduction or elimination of tariffs on raw materials in which this country is substantially deficient.

5 — Greater emphasis on mineral resources in technical assistance programs for under-developed areas of the world.

The board proposed that interested agencies draw an amendment to the Atomic Energy Act specifying conditions under which private interests "could operate commercially to benefit from their atomic power research, development and production."

The conditions would include such things as patent rights, availability of fissionable materials, and allocation of costs between industrial power and weapons.

The board said the interest of industry in participating in atomic power development is retarded by uncertainties as to how it would be permitted to use its results. These uncertainties stem from restrictions in the present law.

City councilmen will meet with spokesmen for Pickaway County's Rural Township Fire Association here Tuesday night in an effort to iron out two important points in the city's agreement with the township group.

City firemen aid in fighting fires outside Circleville under terms of a contract between the municipality and the association, which covers nine townships in the county.

City Council recently declared the contract between the city and Association had lapsed, apparently by a misunderstanding never officially clarified. One item of business will be to seek renewal of the agreement.

Much more controversial is the claim, backed by several of the city lawmakers, that Circleville does not receive enough compensation for its help in battling fires in the townships. Leaders of the Association will probably be asked for a readjustment in this respect at Tuesday's meeting.

ONE OFFICIAL of the township firemen's organization has already said privately there will be no increase in the city's remuneration, presently set at $14 for each time the city takes the township fire truck on calls outside Circleville.

The township truck is owned by the Association and operated by city firefighters.

Councilman Harold Clifton, one of those who believe the city has sufficient compensation under the present setup, pointed out the township truck is available for fires inside Circleville.

He also emphasized that the city, by housing and operating the township truck, is able to get a lower rate for fire insurance.

DR. NED Griner, Pickaway County coroner, said the man died of a heart attack. He was believed to have died at about 10 a. m.

Radcliff said the man is survived by his widow, three children and three step-children.

DUPONT Anti-Trust Suit Dismissed

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—Du Pont President Crawford H. Greenwalt says the Justice Department has withdrawn a criminal antitrust suit against E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Company but failed to publicize the action.

The suit accused the company and a retired employee, Henry Lackey, of conspiring with six other companies to fix prices, discounts and terms of sale of wood finishes. The case dismissed had no connection with the so-called "General Motors" antitrust suit involving Du Pont, Greenwalt said. This civil suit is now being argued in Chicago.

45-5 Ballot Goes Against POW Claims

West Laughs Aloud At Accusations Hurlled By Russia's Gromyko

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—A weary United Nations Assembly early today turned down a bitter Russian demand for condemnation of the United States for the alleged mass murder of Red prisoners on Pongam Island in Korea.

Immediately after, at 4:45 a. m., the Assembly adjourned until Feb. 24, after the inauguration of U. S. President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Red-eyed after a tense all-night debate, Assembly delegates voted 45 "nays" to 5 Soviet bloc "yeas" against the Russian proposal. Ten members of the Arab-Asian bloc abstained. Three in that group, Iraq, Lebanon and Thailand, voted against the Soviet move.

The Soviet bloc gained no support outside of its own tight little group for the resolution, which was denounced by U. S. Delegate Ernest A. Gross as a "sickening" and "shabby midnight propaganda stunt."

GROSS, replying to charges launched at midnight Saturday by Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko said the riot on Dec. 14 in which 87 persons were killed was engineered to help the Kremlin cover up the fact that "the aggressors and their sponsors have rejected peace in Korea."

He said the guards fired at the rioting Reds to quell them and to avoid greater casualties.

Gross referred to the blunt rejection by the Communists of the India peace plan approved by the General Assembly Dec. 3 by a vote of 54 to 5 (Soviet bloc) with Nationalist China abstaining.

"The Soviet government," Gross said, "may now recognize the mistake it made in so brutally rejecting the Indian resolution for peace in Korea and in so contemptuously flouting the will of the UN."

"There is a lesson to be drawn from this midnight maneuver by the Soviet government. It is proof that when members of the United Nations unite on a moral issue and rally from all corners of the earth around the cause of peace and defense of the Charter—the enemies of peace are driven into corners of desperation. We do not believe that our unity can be broken or undermined by acts of lying desperation such as those we have witnessed here."

SELWYN LLOYD, British minister of state; Henri Hoppenot, France; Selim Sarper, Turkey; Alexis Kyrou, Greece; David Johnson, Canada; and Leslie K. Munro, New Zealand — whose countries have troops fighting in Korea — assured Gross they were standing with him in indignant repudiation of the Soviet tactics and allegations.

Lloyd said it "is a matter of bitter regret on the eve of Christmas to have this poisonous propaganda injected here." He expressed confidence in the UN Command in Korea.

Gromyko, looking natty in a blue suit, also linked the riots with the UN adoption of India's peace plan. He said the U. S. wanted to perpetuate the Korean war and the India resolution was part of that scheme.

Gromyko said the International Red Cross report on last spring's prison outbreak at Kojie Island criticized the U. S. for using weapons against rioting prisoners. He said use of force against the prisoners was part of an American scheme to coerce prisoners into saying they did not want to go home. Those who refused, he added, were brutalized.

Gromyko charged that in May, 1951, the U. S. shipped 1,400 Chinese and North Korean prisoners to the U. S. to serve as "guinea pigs in atom experiments."

HE CLAIMED that on May 10, 1952, American hangmen gouged out the eyes of 18 prisoners, and that on May 30, 1952, the U. S. burned 800 prisoners alive in flame thrower experiments.

Lloyd burst out laughing at these claims. Jessup and Gross joined him.

Looking at the British, Gromyko said: "They are laughing louder (Continued on Page Two)"

parently agreed, as he "tried to yank it into the air because it was too late to reverse the propellers and stop it."

The plane rose sharply, the captain related, then started to settle.

"THEN THE pilot turned sharply like he was attempting to come back to the runway. I looked out the window and estimated we were about 75 feet in the air."

The pilot, later identified in the list of dead as Lt. William O'Connell of Portland, Me., probably changed his mind and attempted to resume normal course, Demas said. After that, the first thing Demas could recall was making his painful way from the wreck.

The 116 men in the giant twin-decked plane was not unusual, Air Force officials said. They told of tests in which 160 men with 100-pound packs have flown in C124s without overloading.

But Rep. Edith N. Rogers (R-Mass.) asked the Air Force to ground the transports until the accident causes can be determined. Servicemen, she told Secretary of Air Finletter, "should not be crowded into one large airplane like cattle."

Sen. Stennis (D-Miss.), a member of the armed services committee, called for a full report on recent Globemaster crashes.

ONCE UPON A CHRISTMAS EVE

ESKI boards the ice floe and asks the reindeer what happened. "It's all Dunder's fault," says Blitzen. "He suggested we go for a little ride on this ice floe and before we knew what had happened it drifted out to sea."

JOYFUL, at finding the reindeer, Eski now faces another big problem: How to get them back to Santa Claus in time for the Christmas Trip. A whale, swimming up to see what's going on, gives Eski a good idea.

"SURE," says the friendly whale, "I'll be glad to take you fellows ashore. Just climb aboard and stand real still so you won't slip off into the sea. O. K., you lead the way and I'll follow you." So off they go back to Santa!

than the American delegation. I wonder why."

Hoppenot, answering for the West, said the guinea pig charge was "odious."

Lloyd, in his turn on the rostrum, referred to a statement by Mrs. Gertrude Sekaninova, the Czech delegate, that the UN Command destroyed the "modest effects" the prisoners kept in their huts.

The British minister reminded the Assembly that he had visited the camps himself and had noticed that among the "modest effects" were such things as spears, guns, knives and other weapons.

The debate alternated among Soviet satellites and members of the Western or neutral camps until the speakers were talked out, utterly weary.

Health Council May Consider Dump Problem

Pickaway County Health Council has officially listed three projects already submitted as proposed targets for the organization's efforts.

The council also has announced plans for its meeting next month, when steps will be taken to decide formally what the group will try to accomplish first.

Selection of a new president has also become a priority business.

Mrs. Walter F. Heine agreed to take the council's helm at the time of its organization earlier this year, but stipulated she would have to be relieved of the top duties early in 1953.

Potentially one of the most representative organizations in the county, the council is composed of spokesmen from all local units interested in health programs. In at least one of the projects already proposed, the group's activities would be turned parallel to a problem which has already had the spotlight in Circleville.

"The city dump" is listed as one of the projects proposed for study by the new organization.

ALTHOUGH the health group would only have power to recommend changes under the present setup, its weight as a medium for public opinion is generally recognized.

Other two projects listed for the health group's consideration are:

Education for physically handicapped children;

Unification of city and county health departments.

Mrs. Heine has emphasized no projects have yet been selected officially by the organization she heads. It was indicated additional projects will be suggested when the council meets Jan. 28.

Married Pupil Ban Is Rapped By Attorney

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Florida's Atty. Gen. Richard Ervin says there is no legal reason to bar married children or girls in early stages of pregnancy from attending public schools.

"It's questionable that a rule to bar married children from attending ing public schools would be reasonable or be to the best interest of the school or pupils and could be enforced," Ervin told State School Supt. Thomas D. Bailey yesterday.

"It is commendable in married persons of school age to further their education and thereby be better fitted for life's work and its duties."

He said a pregnant girl under 16, young enough to be required to attend school, might need to be exempted from attendance for health reasons.

Bailey said he did not know how many married pupils are attending Florida schools but county school boards had often asked what should be done about them and he sought the attorney general's opinion.

Taft-Hartley Law Kill Drive Slows

WASHINGTON (AP)—The new head of the American Federation of Labor says the AFL, which long has demanded repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, now is willing to settle for satisfactory amendments to the labor law.

George Meany, AFL president, said yesterday in a radio interview that the November election results "more or less stopped" the drive for repeal.

Favoritism In 37th Denied By General

COLUMBUS (AP) — The artillery commander of the 37th Infantry Division, formerly of the Ohio National Guard, says it isn't true that favoritism has been shown some division members in early discharges.

Brig. Gen. Kenneth Cooper cited the case of Vic Janowicz, All-America football player from Ohio State University, who got out of the service this month.

"Cpl. Janowicz enlisted in the Ohio National Guard June 24, 1948, for a period of three years and re-enlisted July 12, 1951, for a period of one year, and when that expired he was eligible for discharge," Gen. Cooper said.

Gen. Cooper said morale is good in the 37th and no one is getting discharged ahead of time. The 37th is stationed at Camp Polk, La.

Cooper said only men with nine more months to serve are being sent overseas. Any man with less is being kept in the states.

The discharge of Janowicz and many other members of the division came through a new army department policy instituted last spring. Now members of the Guard are discharged when their enlistments are up. Previously they had

GOOD HOLIDAY ADVICE

EXPERIENCE HAS SHOWN the year-end holiday season is the most dangerous period of the year, Ned H. Dearborn, president of the National Safety Council, points out in a communique that should be read and pondered by all citizens.

Traffic accident deaths on both Christmas eve and Christmas Day in the nation are approximately twice as high as the annual daily average. With a four-day holiday this year the death toll could be higher than the 351 traffic deaths during the Christmas week-end of last year, Dearborn says.

The safety head tosses out the following suggestions for a safe and merry Christmas for the motorist:

Driving or walking, put the Christmas spirit of "good will toward men" into practical use by being extra courteous — take time.

The user of Christmas spirits in liquid form should stay away from the wheel of a car.

Avoid home hazards—do not use candles, be sure tree lights and wiring are in good condition. Keep gift wrappings away from fireplaces and other sources of heat.

WHEN PRESIDENTS RELAX

FACING THE HARD prospect of four years of tension in the White House, President-elect Eisenhower already is giving thought to how and where he will relax from the strain of office. A duty the head of the nation owes to all its people is to keep fit by not letting the arduous tasks of his office drive him to a point approaching exhaustion.

Those familiar with how General Eisenhower likes to employ his leisure will not be surprised by the report that he does not plan to use the ocean-going yacht Williamsburg. The President-elect's idea for a summer White House is a place somewhere with a nine-hole golf course and freshwater fishing not too far from the capital.

Herbert Hoover, when President, relinquished the Mayflower, which his predecessors had enjoyed, and did so in the name of economy, withdrawing to a retreat on the Rapidan, where he could fish to his heart's content. Another presidential fisherman was Calvin Coolidge, who took a long vacation in 1927 in South Dakota's Black Hills to try his luck. It was there he spoofed the country with his famous "I do not choose to run in 1928," an idiom perfectly understandable to any New Englander as absolute determination.

These Days

Great historic errors are never made by the people of a country; they do not know enough of what is going on. The errors are made by officials, by individuals, sometimes whimsically, sometimes wilfully.

Responsibility is often avoided by the mighty by the simple device of shifting the blame to smaller men who can hardly defend themselves. Often the people do not really know what has been done to them until decades have passed, archives have been opened and the appalling truth exposed, long after any remedial measures are possible.

In this country, we are fortunate that no man is too great, no office so sacrosanct that a Congressional committee might not uncover the actual facts of a situation if it is so minded. The Owen Lattimore indictment is a case in point.

The Lattimore testimony before the McCarran Committee consumed 817 pages of printed record. It was an amazing performance, often a violent denunciation of the Committee and its processes. I cite one brilliant example of the double skip, the ability to talk plentifully but not to answer the question:

"Senator Ferguson. Might I ask a question there? Did you intend to influence the people in the State Department?"

"Mr. Lattimore. The program of the Institute of Pacific Relations was perfectly clear, Senator. It was to make available on the market, the market of ideas, the most accurate information that it could assemble on the subject of the Far East, so that those who were interested could use that information as they themselves saw best."

"The Chairman. Now, I would like to have you answer the question."

"Senator Ferguson. Answer my question: Did you intend to influence the State Department?"

"Mr. Lattimore. We intended to contribute to the general fund of knowledge about the Far East. Any question of a particular intent to interest the State Department as a policy-making organ of the Government was, to the extent of my knowledge, never dreamed of."

The McCarran Committee established that it was the purpose and activity of the Institute of Pacific Relations to influence the Far Eastern policy of the State Department and its implementation.

Owen Latimore was editor of "Pacific Affairs," the principal publication of the I.P.R. Together with E. C. Carter, Frederick Vanderbilt Field and, for a period, Joseph Barnes, he was a powerful figure in this international organization.

Lattimore's bravado broke down after E. C. Carter's barn at Lee, Massachusetts, was raided and the files found were taken to Washington. Those files continued thousands of documents, some of considerable significance in the development of the great American tragedy, our China policy.

Until these files were examined, little confirmatory evidence was available to show the extent of the I.P.R.'s activities. The files disclosed the entire story. No one has denied the authenticity of these files or of any document taken from them, and no one could, because the files contained original documents, some typewritten, some in longhand, some with marginal notes.

CHAPTER TWENTY

EMILY was forced to admit she felt no special urge to return to Joy Street and she was honestly glad to feel that she was being of some service to her grandmother. When they reached the door at the top, she was warm and happy. When Brian was home on leave, he frequently joined her there. Emily kept the wine closet well stocked and went in and out of the kitchen and pantry as occasion demanded; but she had not once been upstairs again since that night when she had walked from room to room, instinctively listening for sounds which did not come. Deirdre aired and cleaned the premises and reported that everything about them was unchanged. Emily was quite willing to take her word for it.

However, since Old Mrs. Forbes seemed to feel so strongly that someone should supervise every nook and corner of the house on Louisville Square, Emily did this meticulously; and one day she asked Brian if he would care to go to the attic with her; she thought he might find it interesting. He did not quite see what an attic might possibly provide that would be intriguing; but he was entirely amenable to going there with Emily, if that was what she wanted him to do. So they climbed the last steep flight of stairs together and, when they reached the door at the top, she handed him a large key. As she did so, he noticed for the first time, that she had two small glasses in her hand.

"What are those for? To catch rain water when the roof leaks?"

"You don't suppose Grandmama permits leaks in her roof, do you, Brian? Or that glasses this size would hold enough rain water to do any good, if there were one? Have a little patience, you'll see what these are for."

He unlocked the door and opened it. Directly in front of him stood rows of great hand-blown bottles, which were among Old Mrs. Forbes' most cherished possessions. The bottles were filled with rum and the neck of each was encircled by a chain, to which a tag was attached. He bent over and inspected the nearest one.

"This rum was taken in this container around the Horn—1830, 1838, 1845," he read. "Why! It's more than a hundred years old!"

"Certainly it is. Look at some of those other labels. The old theory was that the prolonged rolling and pitching of sailing vessels improved the quality—in addition to aging of course."

"Here's another bottle that went around the Cape of Good Hope—three of them, by golly!"

"Yes, those are supposed to be the best of all. Now you know what the two glasses are for. We'll draw up a couple of those old taven chairs, over in the corner, and have a drink of Great-Grandfather's super-special brand."

The taven chairs to which Emily had referred certainly provided ideal seats for the enjoyment of entertainment conveniently at hand; and after Brian had placed them where Emily had designated, and filled the glasses from one of the bottles labeled GOOD HOPE, he leaned back, alternately sipping and sighing with satisfaction.

"Why didn't you ever bring me here before?" he inquired at length. "I'd say, without a moment's hesitation that this is the most interesting place in the house."

"Well, at the risk of having you pull that old line about the number of things I never think of, in spite of the treat I've just given you, I've got to confess that I never did think of this before—I mean of bringing anyone up here with me. I've just thought of the attic as a place I'd got to inspect, in the course of regular household routine, to make sure it was in order. I never thought of it as the setting for a tete-a-tete."

"I'd say it had everything needed for that—seclusion, comfort, atmosphere and the means of unlimited refreshment."

"I didn't intend to have the amount of refreshment unlimited, Briny."

He set down his glass, suddenly grave. "That's not worrying you, is it, Emily?"

"Isn't what worrying me?"

"That I drink too much?"

"No-o-o. I've always supposed you were a little on the thirsty side, as the saying goes. But that's really none of my affair, is it?"

"It might be. So I'd really like to set your mind at rest on that score. I did used to drink too much, now and again. But I just want you to tell me you're not afraid I'll ever disgrace you."

"Briny, I just said it really wasn't any of my affair."

"And I just said that it might be. Now I'll say that I hope more than anything in the world it will be."

She had continued to toy with her glass while they talked. Now she set it down on the floor beside her, as he had done with his.

"I'm not sure I know just what you mean, Briny," she said quietly.

"You aren't? Why, you must be! You must know I've been in love with you for years! You must know that I've waited and waited for the time to come when I thought it was decent to ask you to marry me."

"But I didn't! It never occurred to me that you were in love with me. In the beginning, I thought you rather disliked me."

"Disliked you? I fell in love with you at first sight. But after all, you were married to my best friend!"

"I tell you, it never occurred to me," Emily repeated persistently. The words came rapidly and she spoke with heightened color. "You didn't act as if you were in love with me!"

"Well, we might as well have a showdown. And, from what you've just said, I gather you expected me to do some kind of pretty violent love-making, either before Roger's death or very soon afterward."

"No—no!" Emily exclaimed again. "I didn't expect you to do that then, any more than I expected you to tell me just now that you wanted to marry me. I thought you did get to like me, after a while. And then, when Roger died, I thought you were sorry for me."

"I was. I was damn sorry for you. I knew what you were going through. No one could help being sorry for you who knew that."

"Well, and then you tried to help me realize there was still something ahead of me. Something worth waiting for."

"Yes. Gradually I tried to get it into your head that you couldn't live all the rest of your life with a memory. You're too young! You're too lovely! You're too—too feminine! You're bound to fall in love again. It's just as normal for you to do that as it was for you to grieve when Roger died. You were made to have children, you'd be a wonderful mother. You can't thwart nature, the way you were trying to do. You ought to be married right now. You're going to marry me, no matter what I have to do to make you! You'll be so glad, afterward, that you won't care!"

Try, Stop Me

When Dagmar, one of TV's ten less-dressed women, exited from a stage door, certain young gentlemen were clamoring for her autograph. The one she accommodated first was a budding diplomat who said, "I recognized you by your voice."

Jan de Hartog, author of the stage hit, "The Fourposter," says he learned about telling stories when he was the youngest member of the crew of the schooner "Rising Hope." The bo'sun drew him aside on deck one day and said, "Kid, you repeat too many stories. It isn't the number of stories you tell that wins you a reputation in that field, it's their quality. Check your results before you add a tale to your permanent collection. Tell it first, for example, to the cook. Then wait outside the galley and listen. If the cook tells your story to the next fellow he sees, you're in! If he doesn't, forget it." De Hartog says he still follows that system. . . I try to myself.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22—A full dress review and revision of American foreign policy has been necessitated by a stunning defeat which the United States recently suffered within the United Nations. It demonstrates that this country cannot buy friendship, alliances or world peace even with the expenditures of billions of dollars annually.

The General Assembly's Economic and Financial Committee, an extremely important body, adopted by sizable vote a resolution which bars the United States from giving any protection to private investments overseas.

It even prevents our State Department from making vocal or written representations on behalf of American firms whose foreign properties are jeopardized by nationalization, confiscation or outright seizure.

ANTI-U. S. — Ironically, this amazing prohibition was proposed by Iran, which has successfully nationalized British petroleum holdings, and by Bolivia, which has taken over valuable and strategic tin mines owned by British and U. S. interests.

The anti-American vote was so large in several tests that adoption of the resolution by the General Assembly itself seems certain. Meanwhile, it is expected that spokesmen for both President Truman and President-elect Eisenhower will try to persuade the recalcitrant majority that they are biting off their own noses to spite the only power sufficiently well-heeled to develop their resources.

UNDERMINED—The 31-nation ultimatum, especially if it is ratified by the General Assembly, will undermine our present strategy in the cold war, which relies on Point Four, Mutual Security and similar expenditures to win us allies in any showdown with Russia. It casts considerable doubt on the value of the $12 billion Marshall Plan investment.

It comes at a time, too, when President Truman, Secretary Acheson and Mutual Security Administrator Harriman, as recently revealed here, have framed a program for encouragement and stimulation of huge private investments abroad.

SCHEME DISCUSSED — Under their scheme, which has been discussed with Eisenhower's aides in this field, the United States was to expand enormously the system under which full or percentage recovery of exported funds is guaranteed by the U. S. Treasury. This sort of businesslike assistance was supposed to supplant the current operations involving direct government loans and grants.

However, in view of the temper of the prospective beneficiaries, it is dubious whether Messrs. Eisenhower, Dulles, Humphrey and Stassen will look up on this suggestion as feasible. Even if they should, it is questionable whether Congress would approve or appropriate the money for it. The UN is already in the black books of many prominent men on Capitol Hill, including Delegate-Senator Wiley.

NEWS FOR STALIN—The outcome was a complete victory for the Soviet, as paralyzing to us in the diplomatic and foreign aid field as the North Korean attack has been to us in the military realm. Almost immediately afterward, Delegate Andrei Vishinsky took ship for home to report the good news to Stalin.

The vote on the key measure was 41 in favor, with only the United States opposed. Nineteen nations, including Britain and the Commonwealth bloc, did not vote because the Bolivia-Iran resolution violated their constitutions. Had they not abstained, they would probably have lined up with us Arrayed against the U.S. were the Latin-American, Asian, Arab and Soviet countries.

LEADS TEST—When the U. S. representative tried to postpone a showdown, the lineup against us was 25-3. Worst of all from our standpoint, the principal opponent on this test was the spokesman from King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia, who is supposed to be our good friend.

Household Hints

Washing improves table linens. Every time you use your fine linens, look for food stains immediately after the meal, and soak or sponge them out. Use cool water for egg, ice cream, meat and fresh fruit stains; warmer water for milk, cream sauces, candy and cocoa. Then launder them in hot soapsuds.

Cheap cutlery requires frequent sharpening and will not keep a keen edge long enough to warrant professional treatment. It pays to buy good knives. In sharpening knives at home on a steel or stone, hold the blade at an angle of about 15 degrees for best results. When using a rotary grinder, pull the blade through repeatedly, but don't push it back and forth.

Merchants Asking Customers To Go Easy On Store Clerks

Circleville merchants, prepared for the last big shopping nights before Christmas, have sent out an SOS—"Save Our Sales-people"—in hopes of easing the final buying jam on their employees.

Store executives, sales-people and the customers around the big corner at Main and Court seem agreed the main weight of the Christmas shopping may develop on Monday night, with Tuesday buying limited only to the desperate and absent-minded.

There was variance of views, however, while city stores were taking a firm grip for the last big buying spree of 1952.

As for the merchants themselves, their attitude could be summed up in the remark:

"Let 'em come! And if they look locally before they look in Columbus, they'll find all they want for the same price or better in Circleville."

Men and women of the sales staffs meanwhile joined in one fervent prayer:

"I HOPE when the customers hit us on this last big night or so, they'll try to decide pretty well what they want before they come in. It's too late now just to shop around as a person could do at other times, and we're going to be awfully, awfully busy!"

The customers? They're too busy concentrating on the piled-high counters to talk much, but their main desires in the final buying panic seemed boiled down to two:

1. They want enough sales-people on duty so they won't have to wait an unreasonable length of time.

2. They hope the average clerk has a fair knowledge of stock in other parts of the store.

The latter point arises from claims by some customers that clerks lack even a general knowledge of stock beyond their own departments.

Some merchants, in turn, point out a degree of this trouble can hardly be avoided during a heavy buying season like the Christmas rush, due to the necessity of hiring extra help who have little or no opportunities to learn anything beyond their own duties.

Aside from such matters pro and con, there was a general feeling that Monday night's shopping could be delightfully rough on the customers and still rougher on the clerks.

THAT'S WHY a number of the store owners agreed it would help a lot if the buying public, before it hits the line this last time or two for the Yuletide, could follow a few plain rules:

1. Try to have an idea of just about what you want before you go into the store.

2. Be as patient as you can when waiting for a clerk. By nine o'clock the sales-people are going to be foot-weary too.

3. Don't hold a clerk with small talk after you've transacted your business. There are probably several others waiting for a chance to buy.

So long as we have these things...

Christmas, 1952 ...

Across the land, the bright lights go on,
and bells chime out the beloved carols ...

Throngs stand before store windows, their arms filled with gaily wrapped packages ...
enchanted by sparkling arrays of gifts ...

The postman's pouch grows heavier and heavier ...

Little folk memorize lines for Christmas pageants ... and their elders bring out replicas of the manger and figures of the Holy Family, the Wise Men and the Angels ...

Holly wreaths appear in windows, and homes become fragrant with the perfume of firs, cedars and pines, and Christmas cooking ...

Everywhere, the joyful anticipation of Christmas is so robust and real that you can almost reach out across the land and touch it.

This Christmas, may our homes be filled with light and laughter, and may the fires burn bright and warm in our hearths ...

May there be cheer in our voices for those we pass, and the handclasp of friendship for those who linger with us ...

May we have hearts filled with forgiveness and selflessness ...

May we have prayers for our fellow Americans who are fighting to preserve liberty ... for strangers as well as neighbors.

So long as we have these things, we will give and receive the full reward of Christmas ... we will keep Christmas, in all its sacredness, in our hearts ... and Christmas will strengthen us in the hope it gives men of good will.

'Case Of Missing Letter' Could Lead To Higher Fire Rates Here

Higher fire insurance rates for Circleville property owners loomed as a possibility Monday as "The Case of the Missing Letter," rolled back to the first chapter, appears to be going into the records unsolved.

Overshadowing the mystery itself is the fact the Ohio Inspection Bureau has recommended city fire department personnel be "at least" doubled—and the bureau, if its recommendations aren't accepted, could cause a boost in fire insurance rates for the community.

The bureau has notified Circleville it is waiting to see what action the city will take on its suggestion, which would give the city a minimum 15-man fire department. At least one city councilman has indicated the lawmakers feel the bureau's recommendations shouldn't cause anyone serious concern, however.

"We're always getting their recommendations," he said. "It's a routine they follow."

CITY FIREMEN, on the other hand, warn "there's nothing routine about it—and it's a serious question that the city better get around to answering before the bureau sends its survey men down here and puts us all in a higher rate bracket."

Behind the present status of the problem, one clearly rooted in the thin soil of city finances, is the unsolved "Case of the Missing Letter."

The missing communication was the original letter in which the inspection bureau sent its recommendations to Mayor Ed Amey last October. The mayor said he never received it.

The bureau mailed the letter here last Oct. 10. After waiting on the assumption the mayor had received his copy, Fire Chief Talmer Wise showed his own copy to Amey just prior to the meeting of City Council Dec. 2. The mayor promptly turned Wise's copy over to Council Clerk Fred Nicholas.

NICHOLAS, contacted after the Council meeting, said it hadn't been read and added he didn't recall any request that it be read. Later, however, he checked his records and announced the letter had been read to Council "almost as the last thing before adjournment."

However, the fact that the letter was read without apparently getting the attention it deserves has since become unimportant with the big questions arising from the muddle.

What action, if any, is the city going to take on the inspection bureau's recommendation?

Wise's copy of the communication was signed by Harry L. Krieger, assistant manager of the Ohio Inspection Bureau in Columbus. The bureau is maintained by fire insurance firms to aid in adjustment of rates for various communities.

Krieger told how, on last Oct. 1, he attended a meeting here of the Rural Township Fire Association, this city's fire-fighting link with the townships. Krieger made it clear he sat in on the meeting because of the bureau's "fire insurance rating" interest. Then he continued:

"In the discussion it was brought out that response to the township was only with one man and that response to the city of Circleville on certain days would be with only two men plus such untrained volunteers as could be recruited at the time of a fire. It is, of course, to be realized that untrained men are more of a liability than an asset."

"NOT ONLY for response to the rural areas but also for much needed response to the city, it is, first of all, recommended that as many additional full-time men be provided as is possible; then, in addition to this, it is also recommended that a call force of at least 15 members be provided, the whole department then to be well trained as a unit.

"No attempt is being made in this letter to go into items other than manpower, for a survey was not made of other things; but in order for the city to have some degree of protection and at the same time grade as well as possible on this particular item, it is suggested that some action be taken on this."

"Will you please keep us informed as to what has been done."

Aussies Send Gift To Man Riding Boat

KURE, Japan (AP)—A group of Australian sergeants have sent two bottles of Christmas cheer—with aspirins attached—to Patrick Michael O'Brien, the man with a ferry but without a country.

O'Brien has been on the Hong Kong-Macao ferry for the past three months, shuttling back and forth between the British and Portuguese colonies because authorities will not give him a permit to land. His citizenship is in question.

Australian sergeants of the British Commonwealth base here got to talking about who should be remembered at Christmas time. O'Brien's name popped up.

The Aussies sent the parcel yesterday by plane, care of the ferry company.

It contained cigarettes, clothing, handkerchiefs and playing cards. The last gift, on the bottom of the parcel, was a musical memento of the occasion—a recording of "Slow Boat to China."

Sokolov's These Days
At one point, Lattimore said, "am I a citizen of America, or a subject of Czechoslovakia or France Spain? Am I expected to run around snooping on my fellow citizens?"

"Senator O'Connor... That statement is entirely unnecessary. The question of Senator Ferguson did not call for any such outburst as that. Now, will you kindly confine yourself to the question that is asked, and I think, if it is answered in the same manner in which the question is asked, there will be no difficulty."

This sort of thing went on for days. In spite of an obvious effort to confuse the Committee, Lattimore contradicted himself. It is on the basis of these contradictions, carefully culled from the record, that the McCarran Committee cited Owen Lattimore to the Attorney General for perjury.

Attorney General James McLaughlin put a staff to work on the record, with the result that some of the contradictions, the ones which in the view of the Government's lawyers were not lapses of memory, but deliberate falsehoods, were placed before the Federal Grand Jury in Washington for an indictment.

That does not establish Owen Lattimore's guilt. It merely gives him his day in court where he may, if he can, disprove the charges.

However, a case such as this, if properly handled in the courts, can open many doors which are now closed.

Big Ten 5s Involved In Upset Series

CHICAGO (AP)—With the Big Ten cage season no more than well started, its already evident a smooth round basketball can take funny bounces, just like a football.

At least two week end basketball results were reminders of the wild 1952 football campaign that saw virtually every conference team figure in some sort of sensational upset.

Michigan State's unheralded Spartans dazed mighty Kansas State Saturday 80-63. The surprise decision came just a day after the Kansans, ranked number two in the nation, had ended Notre Dame's undefeated record with an 80-83 setback.

Notre Dame Saturday night beat UCLA 68-60. The Uclans had taken Michigan State 80-64 the previous evening as part of a two-night doubleheader in East Lansing.

Purdue, able to win only one of three early nonconference games, opened its Big Ten season with a startling 65-59 conquest of previously unbeaten Wisconsin.

Indiana, another team with a 1-2 nonconference record, debuted in the Big Ten with a resounding 88-60 triumph over Michigan, which has lost three straight league games after a solid start against outsiders.

Other Big Ten and Midwest independent action Saturday saw Illinois continue unbeaten with a 75-59 beating of Butler, Ohio State take Pittsburgh 76-70 and Nebraska beat Bradley 73-65.

Torrid Pickaway County League Contests Halt For Next 2 Weeks

Pickaway County's highly-inflam-mable basketball league will be idle for two weeks during holiday vacations.

At just beyond the half-way mark in this year's county league, the eventual championship is a tossup, with any one of six teams capable of landing on top.

The league was thrown into a mixup during the last two weeks of operations when two of the previously undefeated favorites were knocked off, one of them twice.

Ashville's Broncos, strong contenders for the title, were downed two weeks ago by Scioto's Buffaloes, and again last Friday night.

Clarksburg, Williamsport will invade Kingston and Darby will travel to Wurland, Ky.

Darby also will travel to Green-up, Ky., on Jan. 3 to complete its trip.

Complete standings of the county league to date follow:

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
Jackson	5	1	.833
New Holland	4	2	.667
Walnut	4	2	.667
Ashville	3	2	.600
Pickaway	3	2	.600
Williamsport	3	2	.600
Darby	3	3	.500
Atlanta	2	3	.400
Saltcreek	1	3	.250
Scioto	1	3	.250
Monroe	0	6	.000

School Children To Be Admitted Free At Game

All school-age children will be admitted free Tuesday night to the Circleville-St. Charles basketball game in Pickaway Fairgrounds Coliseum.

But there is a catch. Each child admitted free of admission must be accompanied by an adult.

Tom Bennett, faculty manager of Circleville high school, said the special offer is being made in an effort to get the older fans out to the game, giving them a chance to see what the school team has to offer.

Cage Scores

Search Fails To Net Girls Peeved Over Circleville Rents

Little acts from Circleville's passing show:

When members of City Council filed into Pickaway County Commissioners' office not so long ago for a huddle on what to do about the municipal dump, County Engineer Henry T. McCrady happened to be present and snickered on his way out the door:

"This looks like it might be rough, and I'm going to get out of here while the getting's good."

A moment later, an eight-foot window pole leaning in a corner near Councilman Ray Cook toppled over and missed the head of Commissioner Bill Goode by four and three-quarter inches.

The pole was still clattering across the commissioners' desk when somebody in the adjoining office of County Auditor Fred Tipton chuckled:

"See! They're at it already!"

WHAT'S ALL this talk about a Christmas shopper who claims he walked into a downtown store carrying a teddy bear and had it taken away from him? Things have come to a pretty pass when a guy's teddy bear isn't safe in his own arms!

But maybe times are changing, and it certainly seemed that way not so long ago when two worried women stormed into the Pickaway County Engineers' office.

Both seemed to be from somewhere in the Columbus area, and one lost no time in getting down to business.

"Where," she demanded, "is the rent control board around this place?"

When it was explained no rent control office has ever been established here although the future may bring one about, the girls looked at each other knowingly and nodded in the manner of those who see through monkey-shines all of the sudden.

"Well," snorted the talking member of the pair, "that explains an awful lot! No rent control board, eh? No wonder the people around this burg are getting away with murder! The sooner I get moved out of Circleville the better I'll like it!"

And with that they were gone again—so furious and so fast that even a hot-foot chase down Court street couldn't locate the ladies to find out who got away with what.

EVEN NOW, in this time of goodwill and general merriment, there may be reasons to be furious—even if all you can do is go over in a corner and chew on the radiator.

Take the Post Office crews for example, and their current grief with careless handwriting—one of the biggest proofs that America is, and for a long time has been, in an awful hurry.

Just as they do in post offices all over the land, and in almost every other line of activity, Pickaway County folks every day find handwriting that looks as though it may have been done holding the pen or pencil between one's toes. But nary a one should cast a stone without first checking his or her own glass house, and while the habit lacks a good excuse we scribblers nevertheless have lots of company.

Furthermore, the people who print business forms of various types may be held partly responsible. When a person is told to "fill in" a blank or "write on the dotted line," and then finds the blank or line less than one-fourth long enough, there's only one solution.

And that's to write the whole thing in the one hopeless scrawl.

"There's not room enough here to write what you want," complained the weary shopper with a form-to-be-made-out in hand.

"That's all right," the twice-as-weary clerk replied, "I probably won't be able to read what you write anyway."

THE SINGING mood already has the local community in a firm grip, and that goes for a juke box that plays whenever it feels the urge at a downtown restaurant.

Apparently because it had just recognized a coin dropped in by a customer sometime previous, the music-maker suddenly burst forth with one of the latest tunes one recent morning when nobody even had music in mind—much less paying for it.

A waitress glanced around for customers who may have dropped in the coin, saw none, and shrugged:

"I'm getting out of this place. It's haunted!"

One local store that doesn't want public credit for the co-operation it feels it has done a good deed in behalf of the county-wide campaign against rats. An elderly gentleman phoned in from the rural sections to say he wanted two pounds of rat poison but wanted it delivered. It was delivered, and now may it do its duty—all two pounds of it!

Pickaway County's rat campaigners, by the way, should be told about that lady in Detroit who recently was brought into court for the way she rat-proofed her house.

Neighbors, it seems, said she did such a good job of plugging up the holes that the rats already inside couldn't get out.

Fast talk in the great American home:

(In the course of a rambling tale about some early boy friend who was able to dodge arrest as a juvenile delinquent and made a big impression on the girls.)

"I'll tell you one thing! He was very kind and courteous, and when he had that automobile he offered to take me anywhere I wanted to go."

"Ha! One of the first of the mobile wolves! Didn't he say anything about etchings?"

"No, he didn't. But now that you mention it I did notice him scratch."

Lad, 15, Is Killed, Four Others Injured In Accidents In County

A 15-year-old West Union boy was killed at about 12:30 p. m. Sunday west of Circleville when he ran into the path of an automobile containing servicemen going home on leave for Christmas.

Four other persons were injured in two additional mishaps in the county during the weekend. Killed was Ralph Copas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Copas of West Union.

The accident happened at a small cement bridge on Route 22, about 4 miles west of the city.

Deputies Walter Richards and Jim Diltz said the car in which young Copas was riding with his mother, younger brother and an unidentified man, was travelling east on Route 22.

The deputies said the auto had travelled through the bridge and topped about 200 feet beyond while Copas and his younger brother were sent back to the small stream to get water for the car's radiator. The two lads walked back to the bridge, the younger brother staying on the south side of the bridge as the victim crossed the highway and down a steep bank to the water.

Returning to the road, deputies said, the youth started to run across to his brother when he was struck by an auto operated

M. Kirkwood, Henkle Homes Win Awards

Top winners in Circleville's 1952 Christmas home-trimming contest are Montford Kirkwood of 110 Collins Court and Don D. Henkle of 443 East Mound street.

Duplicate first-prize awards of $25 in cash were won by Kirkwood for the best-trimmed house in the north; and Henkle for the best-trimmed in the south.

The Kirkwood home was selected by a panel of four judges as the outstanding decorated home in the north with its "Merry Christmas" theme in a shadow-box effect.

Henkle's home was chosen the best in the south of the city for its display of Santa and Rudolph, the red-nosed reindeer.

OTHER winners in the north were: Richard Plum of 112 Reber avenue, showing a manger and angel theme; and Mrs. Robert V. George, Northridge Road, a mural plus Santa Claus.

Other winners in the south were: Carl Manson and Mrs. Jack Swyers, who decorated the Manson house on Dunmore Road with a "tired" Santa scene; and Robert Dick of 341 East Franklin street, whose house showed a Santa and toys scene.

Duplicate awards of $10 for second and $5 for third were offered in both north and south contests.

William Cook of Park Place and Mrs. Stanley Peters of 313 South Court street were singled out by the judges for honorable mention in the contest.

Judges for this year's contest, directed by Joe Bell for the Chamber of Commerce, were Mr. and Mrs. William Ingle of Bainbridge; and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Beam of Wilmington.

Bell said a total of 28 houses were entered in this year's contest.

16 Ohioans Killed During Week End

COLUMBUS (AP)—Highway accidents took the lives of 12 Ohioans in the state over the week end. Three others died in fires and another in an industrial accident, an Associated Press survey showed today.

Carl Bennett Home Damaged By Fire

Circleville fire department was called at 8:10 a. m. Sunday to extinguish a fire in the home of Carl Bennett, unsuccessful candidate for state representative in last month's elections.

The Bennett home is on Walnut Creek pike, about five miles north-east of Circleville.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise said a fireplace in the residence was not correctly built and that fire, eating through the floor of the living room, had apparently smoldered for several days before it was detected Sunday.

Wise said flooring immediately beneath the fireplace lacked adequate protection.

Damage to the home was estimated at approximately $100.

Work Needed To Ready Gift For Christmas

Circleville's huge Christmas present—a new house the city is building for a family left homeless in a fire Dec. 10—may be ready to place under the tree on Christmas Eve.

But if it is, someone is going to have to work very hard to get the job done.

The site of the new house was attacked by local workmen Sunday and put under roof. About 18 men turned out to give a hand to the family of Montford (the Mole) Pollock, who were burned out.

Talmer Wise, who formed the project of building the Pollocks a new home for Christmas, said the job could be completed by Christmas Eve "if people will turn out in the evenings to work at it."

WORKMEN Sunday completely sheathed the walls and roof of the house, felt-covered the roof and made two partitions.

Wiring under the supervision of Leonard Lyle was roughed in, and electrical circuits were set up. And city roofers Monday morning were to have moved onto the site to place a shingle roof on the new four-room home.

And the chimney located in the center of the home is to be completed Monday by firemen Fred Howell and Bern Wolfe.

But needed to be done yet are: Installation of doors and windows; Inside panelling; Flooring; Installing one more partition; and Tacking on imitation brick siding. Wise said workmen who want to help on the project can report at the site behind the ice plant on Island Road in the evening. Lights will be set up at the site.

McCrary 'Reporting For Duty,' Claims His Suspension Illegal

Circleville Police Chief William F. McCrary, declaring his recent suspension by Mayor Ed Amey illegal, announced by letter Monday he was "reporting for duty as of now." His 15-day suspension has one week yet to go.

McCrary also announced claim on his salary for the past week and "any costs payable." The Chief's action turned the spotlight on the city's civil service commission, which plans to meet at 8 p. m. Monday to "iron out the legal points involved."

A spokesman for the commission said McCrary has yet to ask formally for a hearing before the group.

MAIN PURPOSE of the commission's meeting Monday night presumably would be to study and rule on two technicalities stressed in the Chief's bombshell notice to the mayor.

The Chief's letter, announcing his return to duty, was handed to the mayor by Joe Adkins, counsel for McCrary.

It read as follows: "This is to advise that I am immediately reporting for duty as chief of police of the city of Circleville for the reason that I have been advised by my attorney that the purported suspension given to me on Dec. 15, 1952, is not valid and is null and void for the reason that the Civil Service Commission of the city was not notified forthwith of said suspension and I was not given an opportunity for a hearing before said commission within five days as provided by law."

"I expect to be entitled to my full salary during the past week that I was illegally suspended, together with any costs payable to the chief of police during that time."

McCrary's defiance of the suspension order in effect put two men in charge of Circleville police force pending action by the Civil Service Commission.

"Unless I'm overruled by the commission," Amey declared, "McCrary is still suspended and is not on duty as the chief of police."

AT THE TIME of McCrary's suspension for alleged violation of a rule covering the use of city police cruisers, Amey appointed Policeman Elmer Merriman as acting chief.

Main debate in the controversy, latest chapter in a long series of disputes involving police department authority, was expected to center on the word "forthwith" as used in the Chief's letter.

Point at issue was whether the commission was notified "forthwith" of McCrary's suspension.

Amey wrote a letter of notification to the commission and dated it Dec. 17. He said he is under the impression it was mailed immediately and pointed out he had no control of its progress through local postal channels.

However, Vernon Hawkes, a member of the Civil Service group, said he didn't receive the letter of notification until Monday morning and that it was postmarked as Sunday.

Legal counsel for the Mayor said there is no cause for the chief's reference to the second point stressed in his letter, claiming rights to a hearing before the commission "within five days."

CONTENTION is that the law reads within five days of the date the commission receives the letter—and not within five days of the suspension announcement.

McCrary at first declared there was nothing doubtful in the legal points involved and merely announced, as he stood in the police station:

"I'm here and I'm going to work."

The Chief, however, later left the police headquarters on the advice of his attorney when Amey threatened to ask for a restraining order against the Chief.

McCrary was suspended Dec. 15, the Mayor announced, because the Chief took a police cruiser outside the city without authorization.

More Atom Energy Private Enterprise Urged By Board

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Security Resources Board urged today the government encourage greater participation by private enterprise in the development and use of atomic energy as a source of power.

This is one way, the board said in a report to President Truman, the nation can plan to insure against exhaustion of its strategic materials resources.

Other steps it recommended after a six-month study of long-term materials and energy supply problems included:

1 — A mineral leasing system as an optional alternative to claiming public lands. The board said many provisions of existing law are obsolete.

2 — A law prescribing policy to be followed by the Department of the Interior in managing off-shore oil lands.

3 — Laws authorizing United States participation with Canada in constructing the St. Lawrence Seaway and power project, and providing for other multiple-purpose river development.

4 — LEGISLATION authorizing reduction or elimination of tariffs on raw materials in which this country is substantially deficient.

5 — Greater emphasis on mineral resources in technical assistance programs for under-developed areas of the world.

The board proposed that interested agencies draw an amendment to the Atomic Energy Act specifying conditions under which private interests "could operate commercially to benefit from their atomic power research, development and production."

The conditions would include such things as patent rights, availability of fissionable materials, and allocation of costs between industrial power and weapons.

The board said the interest of industry in participating in atomic power development is retarded by uncertainties as to how it would be permitted to use its results. These uncertainties stem from restrictions in the present law.

Councilmen, Fire Group Set Meeting

City councilmen will meet with spokesmen for Pickaway County's Rural Township Fire Association here Tuesday night in an effort to iron out two important points in the city's agreement with the township group.

City firemen aid in fighting fires outside Circleville under terms of a contract between the municipality and the association, which covers nine townships in the county.

City Council recently declared the contract between the city and Association had lapsed, apparently by a misunderstanding never officially clarified. One item of business will be to seek renewal of the agreement.

Much more controversial is the claim, backed by several of the city lawmakers, that Circleville does not receive enough compensation for its help in battling fires in the townships. Leaders of the Association will probably be asked for a readjustment in this respect at Tuesday's meeting.

ONE OFFICIAL of the township firemen's organization has already said privately there will be no increase in the city's remuneration, presently set at $14 for each time the city takes the township fire truck on calls outside Circleville.

The township truck is owned by the Association and operated by city firefighters.

Councilman Harold Clifton, one of those who believe the city has sufficient compensation under the present setup, pointed out the township truck is available for fires inside Circleville.

He also emphasized that the city, by housing and operating the township truck, is able to get a lower rate for fire insurance.

Poultry Struck By Thieves Here

Thieves were hard on poultry in Pickaway County last weekend.

Officer Rod List said Mrs. Dora Reed of 386 East Mound street reported someone took two pet ducks from the back yard of her home during the weekend.

And Sheriff Charles Radcliff said John Parrott of Kinderhook reported the theft of 40 White Rock pullets from his henhouse Sunday night.

Parrott said thieves had picked the lock on the henhouse door.

In addition, city police were called to the home of Mrs. Henry Renick of Pontius Lane, where burglars had entered through the cellar door. Nothing was reported missing.

Brodie Twins Still Holding On

CHICAGO (AP)—The Brodie Siamese twins clung tenaciously today to the separate life surgeons sought to give them last week.

The 15-month-old sons of Mr. and Mrs. Royt Brodie of Moline, Ill., born joined at the tops of their heads, were separated in a 12-hour and 40-minute operation. Roger, the weaker of the two, is still in a coma and his condition is precarious.

Rodney is still regarded in critical condition and has failed to continue the progress he had made.

45-5 Ballot Goes Against POW Claims

West Laughs Aloud At Accusations Hurled By Russia's Gromyko

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—A weary United Nations Assembly early today turned down a bitter Russian demand for condemnation of the United States for the alleged mass murder of Red prisoners on Pongam Island in Korea.

Immediately after, at 4:45 a. m., the Assembly adjourned until Feb. 24, after the inauguration of U. S. President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Red-eyed after a tense all-night debate, Assembly delegates voted 45 "nays" to 5 Soviet bloc "yeas" against the Russian proposal. Ten members of the Arab-Asian bloc abstained. Three in that group, Iraq, Lebanon and Thailand, voted against the Soviet move.

The Soviet bloc gained no support outside of its own tight little group for the resolution, which was denounced by U. S. Delegate Ernest A. Gross as a "sickening" and "shabby midnight propaganda stunt."

GROSS, replying to charges launched at midnight Saturday by Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko said the riot on Dec. 14 in which 87 persons were killed was engineered to help the Kremlin cover up the fact that "the aggressors and their sponsors have rejected peace in Korea."

He said the guards fired at the rioting Reds to quell them and to avoid greater casualties.

Gross referred to the blunt rejection by the Communists of the India peace plan approved by the General Assembly Dec. 3 by a vote of 54 to 5 (Soviet bloc) with Nationalist China abstaining.

"The Soviet government," Gross said, "may now recognize the mistake it made in so brutally rejecting the Indian resolution for peace in Korea and in so contemptuously flouting the will of the UN."

"There is a lesson to be drawn from this midnight maneuver by the Soviet government. It is proof that when members of the United Nations unite on a moral issue and rally from all corners of the earth around the cause of peace and defense of the Charter—the enemies of peace are driven into corners of desperation. We do not believe that our unity can be broken or undermined by acts of lying desperation such as those we have witnessed here."

SELWYN LLOYD, British minister of state; Henri Hoppenot, France; Selim Harper, Turkey; Alexis Kyrou, Greece; David Johnson, Canada; and Leslie K. Munro, New Zealand — whose countries have troops fighting in Korea — assured Gross they were standing with him in indignant repudiation of the Soviet tactics and allegations.

Lloyd said it "is a matter of bitter regret on the eve of Christmas to have this poisonous propaganda injected here." He expressed confidence in the UN Command in Korea.

Gromyko, looking natty in a blue suit, also linked the riots with the UN adoption of India's peace plan. He said the U. S. wanted to perpetuate the Korean war and the India resolution was part of that scheme.

Gromyko said the International Red Cross report on last spring's prison outbreak at Koje Island criticized the U. S. for using weapons against rioting prisoners. He said use of force against the prisoners was part of an American scheme to coerce prisoners into saying they did not want to go home. Those who refused, he added, were brutalized.

Gromyko charged that in May, 1951, the U. S. shipped 1,400 Chinese and North Korean prisoners to the U. S. to serve as "guinea pigs in atom experiments."

HE CLAIMED that on May 10, 1952, American hangmen gouged out the eyes of 18 prisoners, and that on May 30, 1952, the U. S. burned 800 prisoners alive in flame thrower experiments.

Lloyd burst out laughing at these claims. Jessup and Gross joined him.

Experts Study Air Crash In Which 86 Died

The plane rose sharply, the captain related, then started to settle.

"THEN THE pilot turned sharply like he was attempting to come back to the runway. I looked out the window and estimated we were about 75 feet in the air."

The pilot, later identified in the list of dead as Lt. William O'Connell of Portland, Me., probably changed his mind and attempted to resume normal course, Demas said. After that, the first thing Demas could recall was making his painful way from the wreck.

The 116 men in the giant twin-decked plane was not unusual, Air Force officials said. They told of tests in which 160 men with 100-pound packs have flown in C124s without overloading.

But Rep. Edith N. Rogers (R-Mass.) asked the Air Force to ground the transports until the accident causes can be determined. Servicemen, she told Secretary of Air Finletter, "should not be crowded into one large airplane like cattle."

Sen. Stennis (D-Miss.), a member of the armed services committee, called for a full report on recent Globemaster crashes.

ONCE UPON A CHRISTMAS EVE

ESKI boards the ice floe and asks the reindeer what happened. "It's all Dunder's fault," says Blitzen. "He suggested we go for a little ride on this ice floe and before we knew what had happened it drifted out to sea."

JOYFUL, at finding the reindeer, Eski now faces another big problem: How to get them back to Santa Claus in time for the Christmas Trip. A whale, swimming up to see what's going on, gives Eski a good idea.

"SURE," says the friendly whale, "I'll be glad to take you fellows ashore. Just climb aboard and stand real still so you won't slip off into the sea. O. K., you lead the way and I'll follow you." So off they go back to Santa!

SAFELY ASHORE again, Eski waves goodbye to the friendly whale as it swims away. "Now which way is Santa's headquarters?" asks Vixen. "My goodness!" Eski gasps, "Don't you know, either?" (To Be Continued)

Health Council May Consider Dump Problem

Pickaway County Health Council has officially listed three projects already submitted as proposed targets for the organization's efforts.

The council also has announced plans for its meeting next month, when steps will be taken to decide formally what the group will try to accomplish first.

Selection of a new president has also become a priority business.

Mrs. Walter F. Heine agreed to take the council's helm at the time of its organization earlier this year, but stipulated she would have to be relieved of the top duties early in 1953.

Potentially one of the most representative organizations in the county, the council is composed of spokesmen from all local units interested in health programs. In at least one of the projects already proposed, the group's activities would be turned parallel to a problem which has already had the spotlight in Circleville.

"The city dump" is listed as one of the projects proposed for study by the new organization.

ALTHOUGH the health group would only have power to recommend changes under the present setup, its weight as a medium for public opinion is generally recognized.

Other two projects listed for the health group's consideration are: Education for physically handicapped children; Unification of city and county health departments. Mrs. Heine has emphasized no projects have yet been selected officially by the organization she heads. It was indicated additional projects will be suggested when the council meets Jan. 28.

Married Pupil Ban Is Rapped By Attorney

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Florida's Atty. Gen. Richard Ervin says there is no legal reason to bar married children or girls in early stages of pregnancy from attending public schools.

"It's questionable that a rule to bar married children from attending public schools would be reasonable or be to the best interest of the school or pupils and could be enforced," Ervin told State School Supt. Thomas D. Bailey yesterday.

"It is commendable in married persons of school age to further their education and thereby be better fitted for life's work and its duties."

He said a pregnant girl under 16, young enough to be required to attend school, might need to be exempted from attendance for health reasons.

Bailey said he did not know how many married pupils are attending Florida schools but county school boards had often asked what should be done about them and he sought the attorney general's opinion.

Taft-Hartley Law Kill Drive Slows

WASHINGTON (AP)—The new head of the American Federation

of Labor says the AFL, which long has demanded repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, now is willing to settle for satisfactory amendments to the labor law.

George Meany, AFL president,

said yesterday in a radio interview that the November election results "more or less stopped" the drive for repeal.

Favoritism In 37th Denied By General

COLUMBUS (AP) — The artillery commander of the 37th Infantry Division, formerly of the Ohio National Guard, says it isn't true that favoritism has been shown some division members in early discharges.

Brig. Gen. Kenneth Cooper cited the case of Vic Janowicz, All-America football player from Ohio State University, who got out of the service this month.

"Cpl. Janowicz enlisted in the Ohio National Guard June 24, 1948, for a period of three years and reenlisted July 12, 1951, for a period of one year, and when that expired he was eligible for discharge," Gen. Cooper said.

Gen. Cooper said morale is good in the 37th and no one is getting discharged ahead of time. The 37th is stationed at Camp Polk, La. Cooper said only men with nine more months to serve are being sent overseas. Any man with less is being kept in the states.

The discharge of Janowicz and many other members of the division came through a new army department policy instituted last spring. Now members of the Guard are discharged when their enlistments are up. Previously they had

GOOD HOLIDAY ADVICE
EXPERIENCE HAS SHOWN the year-end holiday season is the most dangerous period of the year, Ned H. Dearborn, president of the National Safety Council, points out in a communique that should be read and pondered by all citizens.

Traffic accident deaths on both Christmas eve and Christmas Day in the nation are approximately twice as high as the annual daily average. With a four-day holiday this year the death toll could be higher than the 351 traffic deaths during the Christmas week-end of last year, Dearborn says.

The safety head tosses out the following suggestions for a safe and merry Christmas for the motorist:

Driving or walking, put the Christmas spirit of "good will toward men" into practical use by being extra courteous — take time.

The user of Christmas lights in liquid form should stay away from the wheel of a car.

Avoid home hazards—do not use candles, be sure tree lights and wiring are in good condition. Keep gift wrappings away from fireplaces and other sources of heat.

WHEN PRESIDENTS RELAX
FACING THE HARD prospect of four years of tension in the White House, President-elect Eisenhower already is giving thought to how and where he will relax from the strain of office. A duty the head of the nation owes to all its people is to keep fit by not letting the arduous tasks of his office drive him to a point approaching exhaustion.

Those familiar with how General Eisenhower likes to employ his leisure will not be surprised by the report that he does not plan to use the ocean-going yacht Williamsburg. The President-elect's idea for a summer White House is a place somewhere with a nine-hole golf course and freshwater fishing not too far from the capital.

Herbert Hoover, when President, relinquished the Mayflower, which his predecessors had enjoyed, and did so in the name of economy, withdrawing to a retreat on the Rapidan, where he could fish to his heart's content. Another presidential fisherman was Calvin Coolidge, who took a long vacation in 1927 in South Dakota's Black Hills to try his luck. It was there he spoofed the country with his famous "I do not choose to run in 1928," an idiom perfectly understandable to any New Englander as absolute determination.

news behind the news

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22—A full dress review and revision of American foreign policy has been necessitated by a stunning defeat which the United States recently suffered within the United Nations. It demonstrates that this country cannot buy friendship, alliances or world peace even with the expenditures of billions of dollars annually.

The General Assembly's Economic and Financial Committee, an extremely important body, adopted by sizable vote a resolution which bars the United States from giving any protection to private investments overseas.

It even prevents our State Department from making vocal or written representations on behalf of American firms whose foreign properties are jeopardized by nationalization, confiscation or outright seizure.

ANTI-U. S. — Ironically, this amazing prohibition was proposed by Iran, which has successfully nationalized British petroleum holdings, and by Bolivia, which has taken over valuable and strategic tin mines owned by British and U. S. interests.

The anti-American vote was so large in several tests that adoption of the resolution by the General Assembly itself seems certain. Meanwhile, it is expected that spokesmen for both President Truman and President-elect Eisenhower will try to persuade the recalcitrant majority that they are biting off their own noses to spite the only power sufficiently well-heeled to develop their resources.

UNDERMINED—The 31-nation ultimatum, especially if it is ratified by the General Assembly, will undermine our present strategy in the cold war, which relies on Point Four, Mutual Security and similar expenditures to win us allies in any showdown with Russia. It casts considerable doubt on the value of the $12 billion Marshall Plan investment.

It comes at a time, too, when President Truman, Secretary Acheson and Mutual Security Administrator Harriman, as recently revealed here, have framed a program for encouragement and stimulation of huge private investments abroad.

SCHEME DISCUSSED—Under their scheme, which has been discussed with Eisenhower's aides in this field, the United States was to expand enormously the system under which full or percentage recovery of exported funds is guaranteed by the U. S. Treasury. This sort of business-like assistance was supposed to supplant the current operations involving direct government loans and grants.

However, in view of the temper of the prospective beneficiaries, it is dubious whether Messrs. Eisenhower, Dulles, Humphrey and Stassen will look up on this suggestion as feasible. Even if they should, it is questionable whether Congress would approve or appropriate the money for it. The UN is already in the black books of many prominent men on Capitol Hill, including Delegate-Senator Wiley.

NEWS FOR STALIN—The outcome was a complete victory for the Soviet, as paralyzing to us in the diplomatic and foreign aid field as the North Korean attack has been to us in the military realm. Almost immediately afterward, Delegate Andrei Vishinsky took ship for home to report the good news to Stalin.

The vote on the key measure was 41 in favor, with only the United States opposed. Nineteen nations, including Britain and the Commonwealth bloc, did not vote because the Bolivia-Iran resolution violated their constitutions. Had they not abstained, they would probably have lined up with us Arrayed against the U. S. were the Latin-American, Asian, Arab and Soviet countries.

CHAPTER TWENTY
EMILY was forced to admit she felt no special urge to return to Joy Street and she was honestly glad to feel that she was being of some service to her grandmother. She worked in her garden herself again now, when it was warm enough. When Brian was home on leave, he frequently joined her there. Emily kept the wine closet well stocked and went in and out of the kitchen and pantry as occasion demanded; but she had not once been upstairs again since that night when she had walked from room to room, instinctively listening for sounds which did not come. Deirdre aired and cleaned the premises and reported that everything about them was unchanged. Emily, was quite willing to take her word for it.

However, since Old Mrs. Forbes seemed to feel so strongly that someone should supervise every nook and corner of the house on Louisville Square, Emily did this meticulously; and one day she asked Brian if he would care to go to the attic with her; she thought he might find it interesting. He did not quite see what an attic might possibly provide that would be intriguing; but he was entirely amenable to going there with Emily, if that was what she wanted him to do. So they climbed the tall, steep flight of stairs together and, when they reached the door at the top, she handed him a large key. As she did so, he noticed for the first time, that she had two small glasses in her hand.

"What are those for? To catch rain water when the roof leaks?"

"You don't suppose Grandmamma permits leaks in her roof, do you, Brian? Or that glasses this size would hold enough rain water to do any good, if there were one? Have a little patience, you'll see what these are for."

He unlocked the door and opened it. Directly in front of him stood rows of great hand-blown bottles, which were among Old Mrs. Forbes' most cherished possessions. The bottles were filled with rum and the neck of each was encircled by a chain, to which a tag was attached. He bent over and inspected the nearest one.

"This rum was taken in this container around the Horn—1830, 1838, 1845," he read. "Why! It's more than a hundred years old!"

"Certainly it is. Look at some of those other labels. The old theory was that the prolonged rolling and pitching of sailing vessels improved the quality—in addition to aging of course."

"Here's another bottle that went around the Cape of Good Hope—three of them, by golly!"

"Yes, those are supposed to be the best of all. Now you know what the two glasses are for. We'll draw up a couple of those old tavern chairs, over in the corner, and have a drink of Great-Grandfather's super-special brand."

The tavern chairs to which Emily had referred certainly provided ideal seats for the enjoyment of entertainment conveniently at hand; and after Brian had placed them where Emily had designated, and filled the glasses from one of the bottles labeled GOOD HOPE, he leaned back, alternately sipping and sighing with satisfaction.

"Why didn't you ever bring me here before?" he inquired at length. "I'd say, without a moment's hesitation that this is the most interesting place in the house."

"Well, at the risk of having you pull that old line about the number of things I never think of, in spite of the treat I've just given you, I've got to confess that I never did think of this before—I mean of bringing anyone up here with me. I've just thought of the attic as a place I'd got to inspect, in the course of regular household routine, to make sure it was in order. I never thought of it as the setting for a tete-a-tete."

"I'd say it had everything needed for that—seclusion, comfort, atmosphere and the means of unlimited refreshment."

"I didn't intend to have the amount of refreshment unlimited, Briny."

He set down his glass, suddenly grave. "That's not worrying you, is it, Emily?"

"Isn't what worrying me?"

"That I drink too much?"

"No-o-o. I've always supposed you were a little on the thirsty side, as the saying goes. But that's really none of my affair, is it?"

"It might be. So I'd really like to set your mind at rest on that score. I did used to drink too much, now and again. But I just want you to tell me you're not afraid I'll ever disgrace you."

"Briny, I just said it really wasn't any of my affair."

"And I just said that it might be. Now I'll say that I hope more than anything in the world it will be."

When Dagmar, one of TV's ten less-dressed women, exited from a stage door, certain young gentlemen were clamoring for her autograph. The one she accommodated first was a budding diplomat who said, "I recognized you by your voice."

Jan de Hartog, author of the stage hit, "The Fourposter," says he learned about telling stories when he was the youngest member of the crew of the schooner "Rising Hope." The boy's crew drew him aside on deck one day and said, "Kid, you repeat too many stories. It isn't the number of stories you tell that wins you a reputation in that field, it's their quality. Check your results before you add a tale to your permanent collection. Tell it first, for example, to the cook. Then wait outside the galley and listen. If the cook tells your story to the next fellow he sees, you're in! If he doesn't, forget it." De Hartog says he still follows that system. . . I try to myself.

Household Hints

Washing improves table linens. Every time you use your fine linens, look for food stains immediately after the meal, and soak or sponge them out. Use cool water for egg, ice cream, meat and fresh fruit stains; warmer water for milk, cream sauces, candy and cocoa. Then launder them in hot soapsuds.

Cheap cutlery requires frequent sharpening and will not keep a keen edge long enough to warrant professional treatment. It pays to buy good knives. In sharpening knives at home on a steel or stone, hold the blade at an angle of about 15 degrees for best results. When using a rotary grinder, pull the blade through repeatedly, but don't push it back and forth.

Merchants Asking Customers To Go Easy On Store Clerks

Circleville merchants, prepared for the last big shopping nights before Christmas, have sent out an SOS—"Save Our Sales-people"—in hopes of easing the final buying jam on their employees.

Store executives, sales-people and the customers around the big corner at Main and Court seem agreed the main weight of the Christmas shopping may develop on Monday night, with Tuesday buying limited only to the desperate and absent-minded.

There was variance of views, however, while city stores were taking a firm grip for the last big buying spree of 1952.

As for the merchants themselves, their attitude could be summed up in the remark:

"Let 'em come! And if they look locally before they look in Columbus, they'll find all they want for the same price or better in Circleville."

Men and women of the sales staffs meanwhile joined in one fervent prayer:

"I HOPE when the customers hit us on this last big night or so, they'll try to decide pretty well what they want before they come in. It's too late now just to shop around as a person could do at other times, and we're going to be awfully, awfully busy!"

The customers? They're too busy concentrating on the piled-high counters to talk much, but their main desires in the final buying panic seemed boiled down to two:

1. They want enough sales-people on duty so they won't have to wait an unreasonable length of time.

2. They hope the average clerk has a fair knowledge of stock in other parts of the store.

The latter point arises from claims by some customers that clerks lack even a general knowledge of stock beyond their own departments.

Some merchants, in turn, point out a degree of this trouble can hardly be avoided during a heavy buying season like the Christmas rush, due to the necessity of hiring extra help who have little or no opportunities to learn anything beyond their own duties.

Aside from such matters pro and con, there was a general feeling that Monday night's shopping could be delightfully rough on the customers and still rougher on the clerks.

THAT'S WHY a number of the store owners agreed it would help a lot if the buying public, before it hits the line this last time or two for the Yuletide, could follow a few plain rules:

1. Try to have an idea of just about what you want before you go into the store.

2. Be as patient as you can when waiting for a clerk. By nine o'clock the sales-people are going to be foot-weary too.

3. Don't hold a clerk with small talk after you've transacted your business. There are probably several others waiting for a chance to buy.

So long as we have these things...

Christmas, 1952 . . .

Across the land, the bright lights go on, and bells chime out the beloved carols . . .

Throngs stand before store windows, their arms filled with gaily wrapped packages . . . enchanted by sparkling arrays of gifts . . .

The postman's pouch grows heavier and heavier . . .

Little folk memorize lines for Christmas pageants . . . and their elders bring out replicas of the manger and figures of the Holy Family, the Wise Men and the Angels . . .

Holly wreaths appear in windows, and homes become fragrant with the perfume of firs, cedars and pines, and Christmas cooking . . .

Everywhere, the joyful anticipation of Christmas is so robust and real that you can almost reach out across the land and touch it.

This Christmas, may our homes be filled with light and laughter, and may the fires burn bright and warm in our hearths . . .

May there be cheer in our voices for those we pass, and the handclasp of friendship for those who linger with us . . .

May we have hearts filled with forgiveness and selflessness . . .

May we have prayers for our fellow Americans who are fighting to preserve liberty . . . for strangers as well as neighbors.

So long as we have these things, we will give and receive the full reward of Christmas . . . we will keep Christmas, in all its sacredness, in our hearts . . . and Christmas will strengthen us in the hope it gives men of good will.

'Case Of Missing Letter' Could Lead To Higher Fire Rates Here

Higher fire insurance rates for Cincinnati property owners loomed as a possibility Monday as "The Case of the Missing Letter," rolled back to the first chapter, appears to be going into the records unsolved.

Overshadowing the mystery itself is the fact the Ohio Inspection Bureau has recommended city fire department personnel be "at least" doubled—and the bureau, if its recommendations aren't accepted, could cause a boost in fire insurance rates for the community.

The bureau has notified Cincinnati it is waiting to see what action the city will take on its suggestion, which would give the city a minimum 15-man fire department. At least one city councilman has indicated the lawmakers feel the bureau's recommendations needn't cause anyone serious concern, however.

"We're always getting their recommendations," he said. "It's a routine they follow."

CITY FIREMEN, on the other hand, warn "there's nothing routine about it—and it's a serious question that the city better get around to answering before the bureau sends its survey men down here and puts us all in a higher rate bracket."

Behind the present status of the problem, one clearly rooted in the thin soil of city finances, is the unsolved "Case of the Missing Letter."

The missing communication was the original letter in which the inspection bureau sent its recommendations to Mayor Ed Amey last October. The mayor said he never received it.

The bureau mailed the letter here last Oct. 10. After waiting on the assumption the mayor had received his copy, Fire Chief Talmer Wise showed his own copy to Amey just prior to the meeting of City Council Dec. 2. The mayor promptly turned Wise's copy over to Council Clerk Fred Nicholas.

NICHOLAS, contacted after the Council meeting, said it hadn't been read and added he didn't recall any request that it be read. Later, however, he checked his records and announced the letter had been read to Council "almost as the last thing before adjournment."

However, the fact that the letter was read without apparently getting the attention it deserves has since become unimportant with the big questions arising from the matter.

What action, if any, is the city going to take on the inspection bureau's recommendation?

Wise's copy of the communication was signed by Harry L. Krieger, assistant manager of the Ohio Inspection Bureau in Columbus. The bureau is maintained by fire insurance firms to aid in adjustment of rates for various communities.

Krieger told how, on last Oct. 1, he attended a meeting here of the Rural Township Fire Association, this city's fire-fighting link with the townships. Krieger made it clear he sat in on the meeting because of the bureau's "fire insurance rating" interest. Then he continued:

"In the discussion it was brought out that response to the township was only with one man and that response to the city of Cincinnati on certain days would be with only two men plus such untrained volunteers as could be recruited at the time of a fire. It is, of course, to be realized that untrained men are more of a liability than an asset."

"NOT ONLY for response to the rural areas but also for much needed response to the city, it is, first of all, recommended that as many additional full-time men be provided as is possible; then, in addition to this, it is also recommended that a call force of at least 15 members be provided, the whole department then to be well trained as a unit.

"No attempt is being made in this letter to go into items other than manpower, for a survey was not made of other things; but in order for the city to have some degree of protection and at the same time grade as well as possible on this particular item, it is suggested that some action be taken on this."

Aussies Send Gift To Man Riding Boat

KURE, Japan (AP)—A group of Australian sergeants have sent two bottles of Christmas cheer—with aspirins attached—to Patrick Michael O'Brien, the man with a ferry but without a country.

O'Brien has been on the Hong Kong-Macao ferry for the past three months, shuttling back and forth between the British and Portuguese colonies because authorities will not give him a permit to land. His citizenship is in question.

Australian sergeants of the British Commonwealth base here got to talking about who should be remembered at Christmas time. O'Brien's name popped up.

The Aussies sent the parcel yesterday by plane, care of the ferry company.

It contained cigarettes, clothing, handkerchiefs and playing cards. The last gift, on the bottom of the parcel, was a musical memento of the occasion—a recording of "Slow Boat to China."

At a point, Lattimore said, "am I a citizen of America, or a subject of Czechoslovakia or Franco Spain? Am I expected to run around snooping on my fellow citizens?"

"Senator O'Connor... That statement is entirely unnecessary. The question of Senator Ferguson did not call for any such outburst as that. Now, will you kindly confine yourself to the question that is asked, and I think, if it is answered in the same manner in which the question is asked, there will be no difficulty."

This sort of thing went on for days. In spite of an obvious effort to confuse the Committee, Lattimore contradicted himself. It is on the basis of these contradictions, carefully culled from the record, that the McCarran Committee charged Owen Lattimore to the Attorney General for perjury.

Attorney General James McGranery put a staff to work on the record, with the result that some of the contradictions, the ones which in the view of the Government's lawyers were not lapses of memory, but deliberate falsehoods, were placed before the Federal Grand Jury in Washington for an indictment.

That Grand Jury heard a number of witnesses and voted the indictment unanimously.

That does not establish Owen Lattimore's guilt. It merely gives him his day in court where he may, if he can, disprove the charges.

However, a case such as this, if properly handled in the courts, can open many doors which are now closed.

Falling Pole Gives Awful Impression At Meeting On Dump

Local Shopper Has To Yield Teddy Bear

Search Fails To Net Girls Peeved Over Circleville Rents

Little acts from Circleville's passing show:
When members of City Council filed into Pickaway County Commissioners' office not so long ago for a huddle on what to do about the municipal dump, County Engineer Henry T. McCrady happened to be present and snickered on his way out the door:
"This looks like it might be rough, and I'm going to get out of here while the getting's good."
A moment later, an eight-foot window pole leaning in a corner near Councilman Ray Cook toppled over and missed the head of Commissioner Bill Goode by four and three-quarter inches.
The pole was still clattering across the commissioners' desk when somebody in the adjoining office of County Auditor Fred Tipton chuckled:
"See! They're at it already!"

WHAT'S ALL this talk about a Christmas shopper who claims he walked into a downtown store carrying a teddy bear and had it taken away from him? Things have come to a pretty pass when a guy's teddy bear isn't safe in his own arms!
But maybe times are changing, and it certainly seemed that way not so long ago when two worried women stormed into the Pickaway County Engineers' office.
Both seemed to be from somewhere in the Columbus area, and one lost no time in getting down to business.
"Where," she demanded, "is the rent control board around this place?"
When it was explained no rent control office has ever been established here although the future may bring one about, the girls looked at each other knowingly and nodded in the manner of those who see through monkey-shines all of the sudden.
"Well," snorted the talking member of the pair, "that explains an awful lot! No rent control board, eh? No wonder the people around this burg are getting away with murder! The sooner I get moved out of Circleville the better I'll like it!"
And with that they were gone again—so furious and so fast that even a hot-foot chase down Court street couldn't locate the ladies to find out who got away with what.
EVEN NOW, in this time of goodwill and general merriment, there may be reasons to be furious—even if all you can do is go over in a corner and chew on the radiator.

Take the Post Office crews for example, and their current grief with careless handwriting—one of the biggest proofs that America is, and for a long time has been, in an awful hurry.
Just as they do in post offices all over the land, and in almost every other line of activity, Pickaway County folks every day find handwriting that looks as though it may have been done holding the pen or pencil between one's toes. But nary a one should cast a stone without first checking his or her own glass house, and while the habit lacks a good excuse we scribblers nevertheless have lots of company.
Furthermore, the people who print business forms of various types may be held partly responsible. When a person is told to "fill in" a blank or "write on the dotted line," and then finds the blank or line less than one-fourth long enough, there's only one solution.
And that's to write the whole thing in the one hopeless scrawl.
"There's not room enough here to write what you want," complained the weary shopper with a form-to-be-made-out in hand.
"That's all right," the twice-as-weary clerk replied, "I probably won't be able to read what you write anyway."

THE SINGING mood already has the local community in a firm grip, and that goes for a juke box that plays whenever it feels the urge at a downtown restaurant.
Apparently because it had just recognized a coin dropped in by a customer sometime previous, the music-maker suddenly burst forth with one of the latest tunes one recent morning when nobody even had music in mind—much less paying for it.
A waitress glanced around for customers who may have dropped in the coin, saw none, and shrugged:
"I'm getting out of this place. It's haunted!"
One local store that doesn't want public credit for the co-operation it feels it has done a good deed in behalf of the county-wide campaign against rats. An elderly gentleman phoned in from the rural sections to say he wanted two pounds of rat poison but wanted it delivered. It was delivered, and now may it do its duty—all two pounds of it!

Pickaway County's rat campaigners, by the way, should be told about that lady in Detroit who recently was brought into court for the way she rat-proofed her house. Neighbors, it seems, said she did such a good job of plugging up the holes that the rats already inside couldn't get out.
Fast talk in the great American home:
(In the course of a rambling tale about some early boy friend who was able to dodge arrest as a juvenile delinquent and made a big impression on the girls.)
"I'll tell you one thing! He was very kind and courteous, and when he had that automobile he offered to take me anywhere I wanted to go."
"Ha! One of the first of the mobile wolves! Didn't he say anything about etchings?"

"No, he didn't. But now that you mention it I did notice him scratch."
